

Congratulations!

Your work permit process is now complete.

It's been a pleasure to assist you, and we hope that you enjoy your time in your new home. Thank you for allowing us to serve you!

We understand you may have questions about the Permanent Residence Application. We've outlined a few key points.

Below is information regarding Canadian Permanent Residence ("PR") Application, which applies to each person on an individual basis.

Currently, Google's immigration support – PR is provided to all Googlers' from day one, who has officially started their employment in Canada. However, you might not be eligible to apply for PR right now per the Immigration and Refugees Protection Act and Immigration and Refugees Protection Regulation.

If you are based outside of the Province of Quebec:

Please note that the most common way to obtain PR is through the Express Entry Process. This is a point-based system, taking into consideration of age, education, language ability, work experience, job offer, etc. For more information, please visit How Express Entry Works

In order to set up your Express Entry profile, you will need to receive the following two documents first:

- Language Test Results (English and/or French): Test results are valid for 2 years prior to PR submission;
- Educational Credential Assessment for your highest degree (Exception: your highest degree was obtained in Canada): ECA report is valid for 5 years prior to PR submission.

*You can expense your PR application-related expense, such as language test (up to two tests per year for Googlers, and one test for spouse/common-law partner) and ECA via go/concur. The reimbursement code you should use is 'General Legal Fee – 63115'.

In most of the cases, Googlers need to complete at least one-year employment in Canada to receive a competitive score under the Express Entry system. We kindly ask you to reach out to us when you are almost reaching your anniversary. Meantime, feel free to work on your Language Test and ECA.

Please note that other types of PR applications, such as provincial nominee programs are restricted to Googlers who do not qualify for Express Entry or their score is relatively low b/c age or lacking education.

If you are based in the Province of Quebec:

The PR application process in Quebec is quite different from the rest of the country.

If you are currently living in Québec for work or studies and would like to settle permanently, find out about the Programme de l'expérience québécoise (Québec experience program).

The most common way to start is to obtain your Certificat de sélection du Québec (CSQ – Québec Selection Certificate). Once received, you may apply for PR to the Federal Government of Canada.

- PEQ – Québec graduate: If you are a graduate from Quebec, you might be eligible to apply after graduation;
- PEQ – Skilled temporary foreign worker: you MUST work in Quebec for at least one year before starting the application and showing you have an advanced intermediate knowledge of oral French.
